ABOUT ALEX BRADLEY

Alex Bradley is a designer whose work has been published, retailed and exhibited internationally, including at 100% Design in London and the Salone Internazionale del Mobile in Milan.

After training in Industrial Design at Loughborough University, Alex went on to gain experience with both multi-disciplinary consultancies and in-house design teams. He has worked on consumer products, interiors, transport, homewares and furniture design – both in the context of design research, strategy, ideation and development for manufacture.

Alex currently works for a leading product strategy consultancy Plan (www.plan.bz), where he specialises in design trends and foresight. His articles for Plan have been published in titles such as 'The Interior Design Yearbook'.

Alex is based in Shoreditch, London.
